Returning This Year!
Ultrasound Class (Without Lab)

The series of lectures will cover in a heavily case-based approach the importance of point-of-care ultrasound, specifically the standardized and validated formats of abdominal FAST (AFAST), thoracic FAST (TFAST) and Vet BLUE (lung). When combined these 3 formats are called Global FAST, our 3rd veterinary ultrasound exam. This same approach is gaining traction in human medicine because traditional formats of complete abdomen and echo are often ordered for the wrong cavity or system; and that radiography is an insensitive soft tissue imaging modality for the abdomen, heart and lung. In other words, the Global FAST approach better directs care, better picks the next best test, better keeps small animals alive for gold standard testing. These lectures are for the general practitioner, the ER veterinarian, and the specialists alike. You will quickly see with the practical case-based approach that at any busy practice, each properly trained veterinarian should be performing Global FAST 3-8 times per day!"
